Acadex Pilot Training Officially Underway!

During the past two weeks (05-6 and 12-13 May 2026), 24 dedicated lecturers from across NWU's three campuses enthusiastically stepped into the future of digital teaching and learning as part of the Acadex Pilot Lecturer Training, facilitated by the Centre for Teaching and Learning.

These lecturers are leading the way in the Acadex implementation, with 15 modules set to be piloted across the University.

The training sessions featured:

- Engaging theory and hands-on practical application
- Exploration of innovative tools and new teaching possibilities
- Meaningful conversations, collaboration, and MANY insightful questions

A special shoutout and sincere thank you to those enthusiastic participants who embraced the journey, challenged themselves, and contributed to shaping the future of teaching and learning at NWU through their active participation in the training:
